Coaching Agreement Checklist

Use this checklist as a guide when creating coaching agreements with new clients.

Depending on the parameters, you should customize pertinent topics for your situation and craft an agreement that reflects the topics that will work best in your coaching engagement.

We will hold regular coaching meetings based on our mutual schedule.

We will hold a minimum of six coaching meetings beyond the data feedback meeting. Each meeting will be 45–60 minutes.

We will communicate outside of coaching meetings using a combination of phone and email, within reason.

We will use an agreed-upon protocol for postponing or canceling meetings.

The client will identify the areas they want to work on during the coaching process.

The coach will conduct a meeting with the sponsor or leader and client to discuss or confirm coaching focus.

We will use an action plan format for documenting objectives, actions, and progress.

The coaching partnership is based on the performance expectations of the coach and client.

The coaching partnership will employ methods for measurement of results both before and after coaching.

We will go beyond superficial talk to explore desired outcomes, fears, and feelings.

We will set a protocol for handling problems in the coaching process or steps.

The coach will not take on the role of a therapist, psychologist, medical, legal, or other qualified professional.

Either party has the right to terminate the coaching relationship at any time.

Both the coach and client will uphold commitments stated within this agreement as well as other accountabilities determined through coaching sessions.

The client is ultimately responsible for and will be held capable for their growth.

The coaching partnership is confidential.
